

I am the Desert

I am the soft, swift breeze
to fly your kites and sway your trees.
I am the tall saguro cacti
and graceful birds who confide to the sky.
I am the javelina protecting her young,
and the beautiful butterflies with their great tongues.

When part of me dies, I am born anew.
But if a plenty of me dies, than it's up to you to save me from suffering, it's what you choose.
I know that it's crazy, it's what you assume,
but in me lies a secret unkown to you.

The secret is I'm like the pheonix,
when an animal dies or shares a kiss,
I am reborn from the ashes, a baby so cute,
I am a treasure greater than the greatest loot.

I am mysterious, alive and free.
So notice me on your next hiking spree.
I love visitors I greet with passion,
the desert is truly a beautiful fassion.

I am the Desert, I am the Desert,
I am the Desert
